An' de tar baby, he ain' sayin' nuthin'. Jes' leanin' up in de fence corner.

There is nothing in the rumor that the Republicans will nominate a county ticket.

The Republican organ should at least nominate its ticket before asking any of the Democrats to vote for it.

If it be desirable to keep the schools out of politics, why not also keep school-owned newspapers out of politics?

Possibly there are a few Democrats dissatisfied with the result of the county primaries—but hardly so bad as to vote the Republican ticket "sight unseen."

One advantage the Democratic "political pot" has over the Republican stew-kettle is that it is not empty sounding brass. There's something in the Democratic pot.

Not many people take the trouble to read a weekly paper, with its compilation of state news, after having read it all the day it happened in the daily. The wise advertiser fully understands this.

The Santa Fe New Mexican and one or two other Republican papers that recently have been converted to the joint statehood faith, are now trying to rule the Democratic papers out of the communion service. 'Twas ever thus with new converts.

The Record has enough confidence in the integrity of District Attorney J. M. Hervey to believe that he will prevent the establishment of a gambling resort just outside the city limits of Roswell, if there is any legal means of stopping it.

Who knows what an earthquake might do to the artesian water supply of the Pecos Valley? But what's the use worrying? Such a thing is as improbable as the nomination of a Republican ticket in Chaves county,—and besides that it might increase the flow anyway.

Of course it isn't fair to jump on a man who is subject entirely to the orders of others and cannot defend himself. The Record will accordingly charge all efforts of the Register-Tribune to stir up trouble in the Democratic party from this on to the stockholders of that publication.

The editor of the Albuquerque Citizen is old-fashioned enough to object to other papers using his editorials without credit. The Record man once felt that way himself, but after grinding out stuff two years for a plate and ready-print factory he got over caring who used his paragraphs for space-fillers. However, he still credits other papers.

The Savannah News says the most pitiable figure in the public eye is the czar of Russia. Lord and master of the lives and liberties of millions of subjects, he has less liberty than the meanest plodder in his empire. There isn't a day or an hour in which he is not in fear of his life. Even the servants of his household and the officers of his guards are perpetually under suspicion. The czar is at once a prisoner and a fugitive, who must remain under guard and at the same time keep moving from palace to palace in order that his "children" may not know precisely where he may be reached with a bomb or a poisoned morsel.

VULGAR AND COMMON.

From Kansas City Times.
District Attorney Jerome's characterization of the Thaw murder case as "an everyday police story" is particularly striking, but possibly in a way that he did not have in mind. "In the eyes of the law," he said, "the defendant's millions add no luster to the situation." That should be literally true, even if it is not. The country is quite prepared to believe that to a representative of the law like Mr. Jerome the wealth or position of the defendant really does not add luster; but there is a common belief that the man of wealth has a better chance to escape punishment for crime than a man of little money. But there is another particular in which this case is conspicuously "an everyday police story." Take away from it the riches of the principals, the notoriety of Thaw and the woman in the case and the professional distinction of Thaw's victim, and you have the commonest kind of circumstances—the jealousies of two conspicuously immoral men over a woman of their class. Murders caused by such rivalries are the commonest kind of capital crimes.

AGAINST MAIL ORDERS.

Governor Folk in an address to the retail merchants of Missouri in convention at Jefferson City Tuesday, said:

"We are proud of our splendid cities, and we want them to increase in wealth and population, and we also want our country towns to grow. We wish the city merchants to build up, but we also desire the country merchants to prosper. I do not believe in the mail-order citizen. If a place is good enough for a man to live in and to make his money in, it is good enough for him to spend his money in.

"No merchant can succeed without advertising in one way or another. Patronize your town papers, build them up and they will build the town up and build you up increased trade and greater opportunities. Do not be afraid that business is going to be hurt by the recent exposures of wrongdoing in the commercial world. No man who is doing an honest business can be injured by the light. All business will be better for the cleansing process it is going through and for the stamping out of evil."

THIS MIGHT HELP.

Since it is pretty hard to run a gambling game without liquor, a law passed by the last legislature might have some bearing on the proposition to start a settlement of the sports just outside the city limits. Chapter 115 Session Laws of 1905, Section 1, provides, in amendment of Sec. 4124 Compiled Laws '97:

"That no license shall be granted for the sale of malt vinous or spirituous liquors at any place in any county of this Territory, except within the limits of a city, town or village containing at least one hundred inhabitants; and any officer authorizing or issuing a license contrary to this provision shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars."

It is further provided in the same chapter of the Session Laws that any attempt to evade the provisions of the act by giving away liquor will be deemed a sale, and therefore constitute the offense of retailing liquor without a license.

To run such a resort as proposed outside the city limits would certainly require the usual amount of whiskey for the patrons.

J. P. Rhodes Here With Bride.

J. P. Rhodes, the well-known and popular immigration man, is a groom of three months. He brought his bride to Roswell on the present excursion and she will be the guest of Mrs. S. G. Joanson, of South Main street, until the next excursion. Mrs. Rhodes was formerly Miss Welma Rainwater, of Carthage, Mo. The couple were united April 25 at Columbia, Kan., but the affair was not announced at Carthage until the couple started on this trip to the Pecos Valley.

Special Meeting of the Army.

Major Morton will conduct a special meeting at the Salvation Army tonight, and also will lead the meetings on Saturday and Sunday. Major Morton has seen over twenty years service in the Salvation Army. He is an excellent singer and interesting speaker, and his meetings are sure to be appreciated by all who attend.

Cadets Hardie Crawford and Augusta Swenson, who left here some six months ago to enter the Salvation Army training home in Chicago, have passed successfully through their training and are now probationary lieutenants. Lieut. Crawford has been assigned to Santa Barbara, Cal. and Lieut. Swenson to Salida, Col.

Judson E. Piper, of Burlington, Iowa, who is connected with the Daily Hawkeye at that place, arrived in the city Thursday evening. While here he will write up the Pecos Valley, with several illustrations, for the People's Popular Monthly, published at Des Moines.

Parties from Lake Arthur report that they had a stiff blow Tuesday night, resulting in several sheds and outhouses being overturned. The report that a brick house was blown over and some of the occupants injured is without foundation.

Mr. Steadman, who was taken violently ill with epilepsy at Acme, was brought to St. Mary's Hospital on a cot Thursday night. Although improved, he was still unable to give his full name today.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pace returned Wednesday evening from Battle Mountain, Goldfield and other points in Nevada. They like the Pecos Valley much better than they do the Sage Brush State and will probably locate at Carlsbad, where they went last night expecting to remain.

SAME OLD MULE.

The Record has no kick to make on the Republican sheriff and the land office sending their work to the Register-Tribune; but just to make it interesting, the Record is willing to print all land office notices and sheriff sales at fifty per cent of legal rates. The Register Tribune is robbing the patrons of those offices if it charges legal rates. We also extend the fifty per cent rate to the district clerk's office, and would be pleased to bid on the job work for the Military Institute and other Republican institutions of the city. This is business, not politics.
